The Farmers All Right.

The Parsons Sun says the farmers in that section are feeling in good spirits over the coming prospects and the loud talk indulged in by a few persons of the deplorable financial condition of the farmers is simply idle twaddle. The farmers are cancelling more loans than for many years past and many are paying off their loans before they become due. This is a sure sign that the farmers are not bankrupt as many would be led to in-fer from the assertions daily made by individuals claiming to know the ington, D. C.:
financial standing of the farmers.
The skies are brightening and the clouds of distrust are slowly but surely passing away and the coming year will find the farmers of Kansas in better financial condition than ever before in the history of the state.

The Columbus Tower.

The Chicago Tribune says it is settled that Chicago is to have a permanent Columbus tower that will cost over $2,000,000. It will be

WATER QUEEN SOAP.

1,500 feet high, with a meter at the base of 480 feet. There will be room story for the largest inside the first story for the largest hotel in the world. The capitalists most interested are New York and Washington men, though considerable stock will be taken in Chicago. The. plans are being made by New York, Philadelphia and Washington architects. It is the intention to have the tower built and ready for business six mouths before the exposition opens, and they expect it will have paid for itself by the end of the first three months of the fair. No aid is asked from the world's fair people; it is to be a private enterprise entirely, and when the great exposition is over it will stand as one of the permanent institutions of Chicago.

> Senator Stanford's Scheme. St Louis Globe-Democrat.

It is one of the surprises of politics that legislators who have been remarkably successful in private busiwildest financial schemes in their offi- living rates. cial capacity. For example, Senator Stanford, who has accumulated a great fortune by skillful speculation, soberly submits a project for the relief of the farmers which has nothing whatever to recommend it to the consideration of intelligent citizens. His proposition in brief is that the government shall make loans on the farms of the country at 1 or 2 per cent interest, in amounts equal to one-fourth or one-half of the assessed value, and issue paper money accordingly, which shall be a legal tender for all debts except interest on national bonds and the redemption of national notes. That is to say, he would have an inflation of the currency to the amount of from $2,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000. The effect of such a proceeding would be to unsettle values of every kind, to drive both gold and silver out of circulation and to bring on a panic of the most disastrous description. We do not need and could not possibly absorb that amount of new currency; and calamity would ensue quite as a matter of course.

ford would not think for a moment of managing his own business according to such a fantastic theory of finance. He would not assume a risk so manifestly contrary alike to recognized business principles and to the promptings of common sense. His experience should have qualified him to give sound advice and make useful recommendations upon a subject of this kind; but instead of doing so, he introduces a bill which, if adopted, could only result in greater evils than any that the country has ever yet encoun-tered. It is discouraging to see men of his standing and supposed wisdom thus trifle with questions of vital im-portance. The people have a right to expect better things from legislators who have amassed big fortunes and conducted large enterprises in a suc-cessful way. The ideas of such men upon financial issues should be peculiarly valuable; but the fact is that they are more apt to be utterly useless. Mr. Stanford's scheme is the worst one yet offered, but others of similar mischief have been put forth from time to time by statesmen of the same class. It seems that the man who has become wealthy by business sagacity loses his head when he enters politics, and cannot be relied upon as a teacher or leader in relation to things with which he professes to be thoroughly Report of Sunday schools. How to acquainted. In any private specula-conduct the singing to make it most tion Mr. Stanford's judgment would be entirely safe and reasonable; but upon a question of public finance it is clearly worth no more than that of an ordinary demagogue who never had any business experience beyond that Miss Sadie Talbot. Miscellaneous of negotiating for the necessaries of
